TasWater lend helping hand to Rosebery RSL

TasWater is committed to help regional and remote communities where possible.

After hearing the concerns from the Rosebery RSL about their current financial situation, TasWater has offered assistance to help their business get back on track through the Commercial Customer Repayment Program.

“TasWater has offered the RSL a repayment scheme on the cost of the grease arrestor, including installation and purchase costs, to assist them,” TasWater Wastewater Source Management Technical Officer Greg Cooper said.

“Around four months ago, the RSL installed pre-treatment systems to minimise the amount of trade waste entering our sewerage network.”

“To support our Category 2 trade waste customers, TasWater is offering a no-interest repayment scheme to help cover the cost of installing or upgrading a compliant trade waste pre-treatment system.”

“After the Rosebery RSL decided to accept the offer for the support program, the application was processed.”

The Rosebery RSL applied for funds equating to the full cost of the grease trap, inclusive of all contractor cost, Council and TasWater fees.

“The TasWater Trade Waste team has worked with the RSL through this time, resulting in a great outcome for the customer.”

“The repayment scheme contract period is four years.”

TasWater understands the importance of the RSL to the Rosebery community, and agree it would be disappointing to see the town lose its RSL.

Other Tasmanian businesses requiring pre-treatment systems may apply for the program given they meet all the requirements in the eligibility checklist.
